

WELCOME TO YOUR MAY 2019 NEWSLETTER. I HOPE EVERYBODY ENJOYED THE EASTER BREAK AND SCHOOL HOLIDAY PERIOD. I KNOW THAT THIS IS A PARTICULAR TIME WHEN MANY GRANDPARENTS HAVE THE OPPORTUNITY TO SPEND QUALITY TIME WITH THEIR GRANDCHILDREN. I HAD A PRIOR COMMITMENT, AND THEREFORE I WAS UNABLE TO ATTEND THE APRIL GENERAL MEETING. ONCE AGAIN, JOHN LANE STOOD-IN FOR ME, IN HIS CAPABLE MANNER, AS HE ALWAYS DOES.

Vince Haywood

Donation to Alzheimer Australia

The April General Meeting approved the donation of $250 to Alzheimer Australia. Our Committee supported the donation.

We have in the past made donations to Alzheimer Australia and other organisations such as cancer research. In making such recommendations, the Committee is mindful that our capital provides the money to support our day to day expenses. We are in a low-interest environment these days; a factor we need to consider when making charitable donations.

Alzheimer's Australia is the peak body providing support and advocacy for the 500,000 Australians living with dementia. It is committed to the prevention of dementia while valuing and supporting the people living with the disease

Federal Election and the Electric Car

As I write this article, the political parties are now in full campaign mode in the federal election. Many people these days have decided to switch-off when it comes to politics. The reason, election campaigns should be a contest of Ideas and vision for the nation's future; instead, we have negativism and pervasive argument.

Take the current federal government's opening salvo when the Labor opposition announced their 50 per cent target for electric cars on our roads by 2030. Many other developed nations have a similar objective and are far more advanced towards their goals today than Australia. If you follow reports from overseas, you would know all the major car manufacturers in the US, China and Europe are gearing up to manufacture electric cars.

Australia lost its car manufacture industry under this federal government's watch. Perhaps, it will be the case, this country will have to accept what the rest of the world is going to sell us.

The government seized an opportunity to make Labor's target about the target heavily taxing your petrol driven car to meet this target. This was despite media analysis showing there was little difference between the government and opposition when it comes to electric vehicles. In fact, the government was already on record themselves predicting electric cars would take an increasing proportion of the nation's vehicle fleet within a relatively short time. So instead of a discussion on future transport and the infrastructure to support electric cars such as charging stations and electrical power supply, we instead got negativism; it was all a plot by the federal opposition to take away the tradies' utes, claimed the Prime Minister and Senator Michaelia Cash.

Water Buy-Backs and Federal ICAC

I wrote back in the March 2019 newsletter of the need for a Federal ICAC. I specifically mentioned the flow of monetary donations and gift and how this largesse plays out in the formulation of government policy decisions.

Now, we have starting to learn of an $80m water Buy-Back deal that occurred in 2017. Then Water Minister, Barnaby Joyce approved a deal where Eastern Australia Agriculture (EAA) received an $80m payment for water on two of their properties. EAA reported a $52m profit on the sale, much of this money appears to have been transferred to its parent company in the Cayman Islands.

Here we come to a lack of transparency; Angus Taylor, the federal energy minister, co-founded EAA. He claims no current involvement in the company. Concerns about this particular water Buy-Back were investigated by the Australia Institute and published in the Guardian over twelve months ago.

PRESIDENT MESSAGE (CONT'D)

Just to remind you, the purpose of purchasing water (Buy-Backs) is to restore much-needed water to the Murray-Darling Basin. Members who were on our trip away to Moree last year, may remember seeing large amounts of green algae in the river when we stopped at Collarenebri for morning tea then later that day seen the warning signs not to swim in the water at Goondiwindi.

The Department of Agriculture and Water Resources (DAWR) was responsible for purchasing the water. DAWR bought the 29 gigalitres of water for nearly $80m.

The Australia Institute noted that EAA's original asking price was $2.200 per megalitre. The Department of Agriculture and Water Resources paid them $2.745 per megalitre; 25 per cent more than asked; a fantastic bit of negotiation on behalf of the Water Resources Department!

The Australia Institute's report reveals more bad news for the taxpayer. EAA's entire properties were valued at $107m in total, just $27m more than the amount paid for the water, the two properties have a river flowing through them, and the properties still get to retain 31.6 gigabytes of water under this water Buy-Back agreement. Just on this basis alone, it is apparent that the department paid tens of millions of dollars too much.

What do we get precisely for $80m? The purchased flood plain water, as the name implies only becomes available when the properties flood. Further, there is no legal status or any recognition once the water leaves the EAA properties, the federal government cannot ensure the water will get to the places it is intended to be used. The Buy-Back water could well flood onto an adjacent properties. I might add the dams and levees are still in place on the two EAA properties, so how the water leaves the property is a mystery.

The Australia Institute and The Guardian did a splendid job exposing this particular water Buy-Back agreement. To discover this information, the Australia Institute had to work with heavily redacted documents supplied by the government. The government still refuses to provide unredacted documents.

Agriculture minister, Senator David Littleproud, has asked the auditor-general to investigate these purchases and all other purchases dating back to 2008. The Australian National Audit Office had already added this to their list of prospective enquiries after the Centre Alliance, the Greens and the ALP had submitted a joint request last year. I would suggest the government is attempting to bury this matter until well past the election, hoping in time, the issue will receive less scrutiny.

Barnaby Joyce maintains it was the Queensland Government that had recommended the purchase, but what the Queensland Government supported was the purchase of the two properties, including all their water licences at the cost of $123m.

Further, he tells us that it was his department that approved the water Buy-Back, not himself. Clearly, Mr Joyce does not understand ministerial accountability. Does he seriously suggest that $78m is purely discretionary spending over which he has no oversight interest? If he had exercised his ministerial responsibility, he might have asked his department why it paid 139% higher than a previous purchase for the same type of licence and 85% higher than the average price for a more reliable kind of water licence or why this water Buy-Back did not go to open tender.

This sorry episode calls for a body like a Federal ICAC to investigate. A Federal ICAC would tell us if corruption was at the bottom of this water Buy-Back agreement or we simply have an incompetent minister and government department who have wasted $80m on the water that may never exist or ever reach the Murray-Darling Basin.

Woy Woy General Meeting

Our next general meeting in May will take place on the Central Coast. Over the years, we have held the May General Meeting on the Central Coast to give our members who live there the chance to attend our general meeting. Many members come from Sydney travel to Woy Woy for this meeting, I welcome them again this year to travel to Woy Woy. The meeting offers friends and former workmates the opportunity to meet up. I would urge members from Newcastle and the Central Coast to avail themselves of this opportunity.

The meeting is to be held on the 23rd May 2019 at the Woy Woy Leagues Club and commences at 10.30 am. More details including train timetables are in this newsletter.

Bye for now,
Vince

Anthony (Tony) Woodfield

The Association is sad to report the passing of Tony Woodfield who passed away suddenly in his home on Sunday morning on the 31st March 2019. Tony's funeral service was on Friday, 5th April 2019.

Tony Woodfield was a member of the Retired Members Association for over five years. Tony is the husband of Mary Kovacs also a member of our Association.

Tony over recent years suffered health problems. He was seriously ill back in 2016 when he spent time in intensive care. Tony gradually recovered with Mary's help and support. Mary was a strong advocate for Tony when she considered he was not receiving the appropriate care.

Tony and Mary regularly attended the Association's General Meetings. He and Mary had attended the March General Meeting only a week before.

Tony was working for Cooks Transport, however, he did not like the job. At Mary's suggestion he began work with Telecom as a mechanic in the Automotive Plant at Villawood where he remained until offered redundancy.

Tony decided that he wanted to stay with Telecom and moved to a position in the Sales Office for about five years, working on computers. Tony was not keen on the work as he was an outdoors person.

When the Sydney Olympics came along; he studied with Mary's help to qualify as a linesman. After the Olympics, he moved to look after the Waterboard lines until his retirement.

Outside of work, Tony also served 43 years in the Army Reserves, his other great love.

Mary thanked the Association for the support she has received, especially from John Lane and Bob Hamblion.

Retired Members Association extends its condolences and deepest sympathies to Mary, family and friends.

Important Notice

JULY GENERAL MEETING AT EMU PLAINS
NOW TO BE HELD IN AUGUST

The July General Meeting previously scheduled for the fourth Thursday, in July at O'Donohues Hotel, Emu Plains is postponed to the Thursday, 22nd August commencing 10.30am. This is because O'Donohues Hotel has a prior booking for our original July date. The July General Meeting will now be held at the FSU Meeting Room, 2nd Floor, 321 Pitt Street, Sydney

OUR NEXT SOCIAL FUNCTION IS THE AUTUMN LEAVES LUNCH AT THE SPRINGWOOD BOWLING CLUB ON THURSDAY, 16TH MAY 2019. THE BOWLING CLUB OVER THE YEARS HAS PROVED TO BE AN EXCELLENT VENUE, IT HAS A WARM AND COSY ENVIRONMENT, ESSENTIAL AS THE TEMPERATURE OUTSIDE BEGINS TO COOL. THIS LUNCH HAS BEEN A REGULAR FEATURE FOR THE RETIRED MEMBERS ASSOCIATION AND OFFERS AN EXCELLENT OPPORTUNITY TO ATTEND FOR MEMBERS IN SYDNEY'S WEST AND BLUE MOUNTAINS AREAS. YOU WILL FIND IN THIS MONTH'S NEWSLETTER TRAIN TIMETABLES AND MAP DIRECTIONS.

I look forward to seeing many of you there.

Manly Skiff - Lunch Cancellation

I have to report a problem for our planned June lunch at the Manly Skiff Club. The club has changed its policy for group bookings. The club now requires people who are part of a group booking to select their food from a set menu. The club has two set menus, one at $35 and the other costs $45.

I consider our members should be able to order their own meals like the other patrons attending the club. I know this will come as a disappointment to many of you, the club is in a great location.

I am now looking to have lunch at the Manly Wharf Hotel. The hotel has a wide range of food choices, for example on a Thursday (the day we would be there), the club has a special menu item comprising steak, chips and salad for $10. Significant savings compared to the fixed menu prices. The hotel is very close to the Manly Ferry Terminal. I have not been able to finalise a booking in time for this month's newsletter. Therefore, please look in our next newsletter for booking confirmation.

Tour of the Garvan Institute

Further, in July, we will be doing a tour of the Garvan Institute. The Garvan is a state-of-the-art scientific facility. We will learn how medical research is progressing at an increasingly rapid rate.

I personally will be looking forward to seeing the institute's progress in reversing the ageing process in the knee joint. Next month's newsletter will have information on this tour.

Reminder!

Now is the time for your Flu Injection

For seniors who are in their sixties or older having the flu can be a lot more serious than just a runny nose, a cough and aches in the joints.

Unfortunately for older people aged 65 years, the flu can have serious complications, particularly if they have existing health problems such as:

- Heart disease
- Lung conditions
- Kidney problems
- Undergoing cancer treatment
- Diabetes
- Blood disorders
- and various other conditions.

Flu complications can result in hospitalisation and on a more serious note, there were 3334 deaths attributed to influenza and pneumonia in 2016. The average age of a victim was 88.

The Flu Vaccine is Free

Free flu vaccines under the National Immunisation Program have been available from a vaccination provider since April 2018. Getting vaccinated early (now) gives you the best protection ahead of the peak flu period, from around June to September.

The vaccine is free under the National Immunisation Program for people who are more likely to be affected by complications from the flu. This includes seniors 65 years and over.

More Ways to Prevent the Spread of the Flu

Given there will be still risks associated with the flu, you should:

- Avoid close contact with people who are sick. When you are sick, keep your distance from others to protect others from getting sick too.
- Cover your mouth and nose with a tissue when coughing or sneezing. Promptly dispose of the tissue and wash your hands after using a tissue.
- Clean your hands regularly, use a hand sanitiser where possible.
- Avoid touching your eyes, nose or mouth.
- Practice other good health habits. Clean and disinfect frequently touched surfaces at home.

Get plenty of sleep, be physically active, manage your stress, drink plenty of fluids, and eat nutritious food.

FIRST FIELD APPOINTMENT

Barry Robinson

This month, the newsletter returns to Barry Robinson's book, telling of his work experiences. This month, we join Barry on his first field assignment in 1958. Barry is off to York Street; you may recall last year we featured Ralph Britten's stories about his time also at York Street. Let's hope that Ralph was not at the end of Barry and other trainees' pranks.

Then we jump to Barry's work experience outside of Telstra. One of Barry's workplace initiatives don't go quite to plan.

AT THE END OF 1958, WE WERE ALLOCATED TO VARIOUS TELEPHONE EXCHANGES THROUGHOUT NSW. LEN LAMONT AND I WENT TO YORK TELEPHONE EXCHANGE LOCATED IN THE GRACE BUILDING ON THE CORNER OF YORK, CLARENCE AND MARKET STREETS, SYDNEY ALONG WITH ANOTHER SIX OTHER TECHNICIANS. WE WERE ALL SIXTEEN AT THE TIME AND WERE FOREVER IN TROUBLE. THERE WAS NOT MUCH WE WERE ABLE TO DO SO WE WOULD PLAY TRICKS ON THE OLDER STAFF.

One of the tricks we played was to connect a spare telephone line to the morning tea hooter button, which was in the supervisor's office. I can still see John Manson's face looking at the button after the hooter went off half a minute before nine o'clock which was the morning tea time. All we had to do was to dial the spare's line number and off went the hooter.

We used the same circuit to connect into the exchange's public address system. It had two microphones, one inside the exchange and the other in the boss's office. We would use this when we were out late at night and ring the number when we knew only one staff member was on duty. The lone staff member would hear our voice saying get back to work. He would think someone was in the office, we would wait a moment until we thought he would get to the office, then say "stop mucking around in the office and get back to work". We drove the night shift guy's nuts for several weeks using this circuit. Later we found many other uses for the circuit including connecting it up to various alarms.

In 1960, my third year at work as a Technician in Training, I was sent into the field to repair telephones, intercom systems and telephone switchboards inside subscribers' premises. Later the term subscriber was changed to customer. My area extended from Wynyard and Town Hall Stations to Darling Harbour. Below the city is a network of telephone cable tunnels interconnecting all the telephone exchanges. They are large enough to walk through. We spent some time chasing each other from one end of the city to the other and scaring people standing next to vent in the footpaths above us.

On top of the Grace Building is a tower in one corner, this part of the building was used as the PMG radio terminal, as it was the highest point in Sydney. Later as the city grew, the radio terminal moved to Redfern Telephone Exchange. Of course, as the city continued to grow, the final destination for the radio terminal was at Waverley. Today, long-distance radio links are almost obsolete as the Optical Fibre Cable Technology has taken over the Broadband Radio and the Coaxial Cable networks.

Bankstown Employment Services

I found an advertisement in the local Bankstown paper for a position of Trainer to teach PowerPoint on computers at the Bankstown Employment Services Training (BEST) which provided computer skills training for unemployed people. I applied for and got a position which was for four days per week. I was also asked to teach Word Perfect, a primitive version of Microsoft Word that I had never used before; I taught it anyway.

The computers were a mess, and only half of them had a mouse, and the majority had viruses that needed to be cleaned out. The majority of staff were women, a new experience for me; they were always stressed. The boss was always asking me if I required a hand, I said: "no I am fine". I guess I was the only staff member not stressed out. I had one guy on the first course who was an artist and had never used a computer before. He drew a Spanish Galleon in incredible detail using PowerPoint.

FIRST FIELD APPOINTMENT (CONT'D)

Western Sydney Itech

Next, I was contacted by Michael Burke from the old North Sydney School. Michael wanted someone to run some electronic courses at Western Sydney Itech at Parramatta. Michael had been working at Western Sydney Itech for some time. Once again it involved teaching the unemployed, this time involving wiring, soldering, circuit reading and electrical theory and also writing résumés and organising work experience.

The courses lasted for eight weeks and some of the advanced courses sixteen weeks. I spent about one and a half years there, Michael and I were the only guys, the majority were women who taught office skills. Once again, they were very stressed and in a perpetual panic. The boss was always asking us if we required help; we declined.

One morning there was a copy of a fax on the notice board from the Blood Bank. The fax was asking businesses if they could release staff to make blood donations. The Blood Bank offered their bus to pick up donators take them to the Parramatta Blood Bank. I spoke to the boss about taking the class there, he asked if I could arrange it? I replied "of course".

I went back to the class and asked if they would like a bus tour of Parramatta and a free lunch?

They said: "if I could arrange that for free?"

I said, "of course".

I arranged for the bus to pick us up at 11 am. I took the class over to the Red Cross bus when it pulled up. However, once the bus was spotted with the Red Cross on its side, two Vietnamese guys shot threw thinking they were to be deported. When we arrived at the blood bank about another three would not go inside.

The remainder of us went in and filled out the paperwork. As a result, only one from the group was eligible to give blood.

We were thanked for coming and were given a hot meal. I could not donate because of my cancer back in 1988. We waited a long time for our one and only donor to reappear. When he did appear after giving the blood, he was a little dizzy, the nurse told him to lay there and relax, and of course, he went to sleep. When we got back to work, I told the boss what had happened; he just laughed.

Eventually, the company had to stop operations as the then Prime Minister John Howard cut the funding to the Skill Share Program which ITEC relied upon to fund their operations. On the last day, because the majority of permanent staff had left days before, I was left to run a computer typing class, a class finishing their résumés and my own class who were completing their final exam. This was followed by a party for my class then followed by the wake held by the Boss of Itech.
